1. GENERAL

1.1 Scope of Section

1.11 This section describes and explains the Office Record Index (ORI).

2. DEFINITION

2.1 The ORI is a tape-stored computer print out replacement for the present Manual Office Record Drawing.

3. COMPOSITION

3.1 The ORI consists of two sections, A and B.

3.11 Section A is a list of office features and characteristics.

3.12 Section B is a list of associated job drawings.

4. SECTION A - OFFICE FEATURES AND CHARACTERISTICS

4.1 Section A is composed of various subsections which are explained below. Figure 1 of this section should be referred to for illustrations of typical entries in these subsections.

General Characteristics, Section (01)

This section concerns itself with types of equipment (i.e., Toll X-Bar, Panel) and shows the general characteristics of the base.

Building Features, Section (05)

Shows the physical building features such as ceiling heights, types of bracings and air-conditioning.

Transmission Characteristics, Section (10)

Shows characteristics such as Via Net Loss, Terminal Net Loss, and Office Impedance.

Mtce. & Eng. Alarms, Section (15)

Shows the fire detection level, type of alarm and base drawings that the alarm equipment is shown on.

Location of Equipment and Supplies, Section (20)

Shows the locations of various types of office equipment and supplies.

AC Service, Section (25)

Lists the various types of office equipment and supplies available in the office.

Ringling Supplies, Section (26)

Shows the ringling supplies available in the office.

Tone and Signal Supplies, Section (27)

Shows the tone and signal supplies available in the office.

Machine Ring Supplies, Section (28)

Shows the machine ring supplies available in the office.

Miscellaneous Supplies and Terminations, Section (29)

Shows any miscellaneous supplies and terminations available in the office that are not covered in Sections (20) to (28) above.

Power Plants, Section (30)

Shows all the power plants and associated amperages available on the base.

Fuse Assignments, Sections (43), (44), (45), (47)

Shows the miscellaneous fuse bays containing the supplies shown in Sections (40) to (47). A "C" at the right of the bay number identifies the bay as having no more space for future panel assignments.

Notes, Section (70)

Shows any notes of a general nature not included in other sections. Notes start with "A" and progress through the alphabet to "ZY" when required.

Job Drawing Notes, Section (75)

Shows notes that are specifically related to a job drawing listed in the "B" Section of the associated ORI.

Associated Drawings, Section (85)

Shows any drawing associated with the ORI base having a different base or no base at all, such as a telephone company drawing, ED, T (6 digit), or H drawing.

Miscellaneous Section (95)

Shows any information that is not associated with any of the above sections.

5. SECTION B - LIST OF ASSOCIATED JOB DRAWINGS

5.1 Section B is a list of all job drawings (see Figure 1) with the office.

6. LISTING OF ORI WITH JOB PAPERS

6.1 The Office Record Index is listed under the "Installers Reference Papers" heading of the installing specification for every order.
