1 Purpose

This Practice (BR) is a consolidation of the data in three BRs that were discontinued in 1998:

- BR 751-100-115, COMMON LANGUAGE® Interexchange Access Customer (IAC) Codes
- BR 751-100-110, COMMON LANGUAGE® Exchange Carrier Names
- BR 751-100-175, COMMON LANGUAGE® Bellcore and Regional Holding Company Codes.

It is important to note that the three code sets continue to remain separate and different from each other. The intent of this document is to put all codes that represent company names in one place for ease of use by the user.

This BR contains the standard codes for the representation of Incumbent Local Exchange Carriers, Competitive Local Exchange Carriers, Interexchange Carriers, Resellers, Wireless Services Providers, Enhanced Service Providers, Telecommunications Billing and/or Processing Companies, Competitive Access Providers, Regional Holding Companies and any other type of company that is part of the telecommunications industry.

2 Scope

The codes in this BR are used by the following types of organizations: Network Distribution, Switching Operations, Financial/Comptrollers and Regulatory/ External Affairs. They are particularly applicable to the following operations: Ordering, Circuit Provisioning, Billing and Bill Verification.

Two important uses of these codes are interfacing between companies and achieving flow-through. These codes serve as a trigger to get an order moving through the process in most companies.

3 Reason for Issue

This BR is issued to reflect all standard codes in all categories that have been assigned up to the publication date of this document.

The COMMON LANGUAGE[®] Technical Advisory Group (TAG) has approved some changes/additions to the content and format of this document.

No changes have been made to the manner in which codes are assigned nor to the rules governing those assignments.

The changes/additions in this issue are:

- A white paper on IAC/EC Codes has been prepared and distributed by the Telcordia maintenance agent to address issues surrounding these codes. All of the white paper information has been incorporated into this document in Sections 5 and 6.
- The description of CUS in the IAC Code database has been changed
 - FROM: Casual Customer to CABS Billing System
 - TO: Default Value for Casual Customer. Not a Valid IAC Code.
- Added ZZZ to the IAC Code database with the following description:
 - Default Value for Casual Customer. Not a Valid IAC Code.
- Added 26 codes, ZTA through ZTZ, to the IAC Code database each with the following description:
 - Locally Assigned For Internal Testing Purposes - Invalid IAC Code.
- A consolidated code is a code that is no longer to be used and another code will be used instead. Codes are consolidated on request from the company to whom the codes are assigned. This document and the IAC Code database will show as the Company Name value for consolidated codes:
 - Use IAC Code (xxx)

The company name and previous company name(s) will be retained in the database and will also be shown in new tables, 10-1 and 13-1, in this document.

- New Table 10-1, Consolidated IAC Codes Sorted by Code. The table shows the code that has been consolidated, the reference to the code to use now, and the previous company name(s).
- New Table 13-1, Consolidated EC Codes Sorted by Code. The table shows the code that has been consolidated, the reference to the code to use now, and the previous company name(s).

4 General

Direct questions concerning this Practice to the General Codes Code Set Subject Matter Expert, COMMON LANGUAGE Products Business Unit.

The Telcordia COMMON LANGUAGE Products Business Unit provides the technical expertise to maintain the General Codes Code Set of which these codes are a part. The COMMON LANGUAGE Technical Advisory Group (TAG) contributes to this process in accordance with the procedures outlined in BR 751-000-102, COMMON LANGUAGE® Code Set Request Procedures.

5 IAC Codes

A. The IAC codes represent a company name. They identify Incumbent Local Exchange Carriers, Competitive Local Exchange Carriers, Interexchange Carriers, Resellers, Wireless Services Providers, Enhanced Service Providers, Telecommunications Billing and/or Processing Companies, Competitive Access Providers, Regional Holding Companies and any other type of company that is part of the telecommunications industry.

Separate codes are not assigned for different functions of a company. If a company falls into more than one of the above categories, the rule is as stated: The code represents a company name and one code per company name is assigned.

IAC formerly stood for Interexchange Access Customer. As changes have occurred in the telecommunications industry, the words "Interexchange" and "Access" became confusing to users of these codes. The COMMON LANGUAGE Technical Advisory Group recognized this dilemma and made the decision to refer to these codes as IAC codes.

An IAC is a telecommunications or information provider who may be classified as any of the functional entities listed above.

The code is not owned by the company to whom it is assigned. The code is part of the national database that serves as a repository for all codes assigned. The code is non-transferrable and cannot be part of a legal agreement to be sold or changed. When changes are needed, contact Telcordia and provide legal documentation from the state to substantiate the request.

IAC codes are assigned to these companies by Telcordia as the maintenance agent for ANSI T1.251. The attempt is made to make the codes mnemonic when such a code is available and not already assigned.

The IAC code is made up of three alphabetic characters.

These codes are used by the following types of organizations: Network Distribution, Switching Operations, Financial/Comptrollers and Regulatory/ External Affairs. They are particularly applicable to the following operations: Ordering, Circuit Provisioning, Billing and Bill Verification.

Two important uses of these codes are interfacing between companies and achieving flow-through. These codes serve as a trigger to get an order moving through the process in most companies.

When a company places an order with a provider, the IAC code (or ACNA/ CCNA) and the company name on the order are verified against the Telcordia national database. If there is a discrepancy, the provider will refer the company to Telcordia to follow procedures to update the database.

Codes not in the national database are invalid.

B. Assignment of new codes

One code per company is assigned. Separate codes are not assigned for different functions of a company. If a company functions as more than one of the kinds of entities listed above, ONE CODE IS ASSIGNED to the company name, not individual codes to the functions. If it is necessary to define a function of a company, it is done in other ways, e.g., with the use of Field Identifiers on a Service Order.

(A given company may be assigned one IAC code as well as one EC code. The requirement for which code is needed is determined by the companies with whom the company does business, i.e., some companies require a three-character code for their processes and some companies require a four-character code.)

C. Required documentation

Documentation required to substantiate the request for a code or change to a code is legal documentation from the state; generally the office of the Secretary of State.

Per ANSI Standard T1.251, the IAC Code identifies a company. As the maintenance agent for the ANSI Standard, Telcordia upholds that definition. To that end, legal documentation is required showing a legal company name to be input into the database. This assures that the information going in is as correct as possible and that all users of the database can be confident about the information

Generally the legal document will be called Articles of Incorporation. However, not all companies are incorporated and not all states use the same name for the document. Here is a partial list of some document names that are acceptable as legal documentation:

- Amended Certificate of Convenience and Necessity
- Articles of Amendment
- Articles of Amendment to Articles of Incorporation
- Articles of Conversion
- Articles of Incorporation
- Articles of Merger
- Articles of Merger, Consolidation or Exchange
- Articles of Organization
- Articles of Organization Limited Liability Co
- Certificate of Amendment to Certificate of Incorporation
- Certificate of Assumed Name
- Certificate of Assumed or Trade Name
- Certificate of Convenience and Necessity

- Certificate of Existence
- Certificate of Existence with Status in Good Standing
- Certificate of Formation
- Certificate of Formation
- Certificate of Good Standing
- Certificate of Incorporation
- Certificate of Merger
- Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity
- Certification of Fictitious Business Name
- Certified Fictitious Business Name Statement
- Registration of Fictitious Name
- Restated Articles of Incorporation with Amendments

Forms S-1 or 10K filed with Securities and Exchange Commission will very often be helpful in identifying subsidiaries.

D. Name Changes

To effect a name change for a particular IAC code, Telcordia must be provided with legal documentation from a state government showing that the company name has changed from what is shown in the database to what the client desires to have shown. Documentation that does not specifically state a name change is not acceptable for a change to a company name in the national database.

Company name changes are requested when:

- a company changes its name
- a company purchases (or otherwise acquires) another company and the name of the "old" company changes to that of the purchasing company.

There may not be a direct, one-step link from the database name to what is desired because interim name changes may not have been provided to Telcordia. In this case, legal documentation that shows the links from the database name to what is desired is acceptable. For example:

Database Name = Company A / Desired Name = Company D
Documentation that depicts Company A to Company B to Company C to Company D is acceptable to change the name from Company A to Company D.

In some cases, for a variety of reasons, legal documentation of a name change is not available. Some of these reasons are:

- the company name did not actually change
- the "new" company bought assets, not the whole company

- the purchase occurred, but for business reasons, the name of the company will not be changed
- documentation cannot be found.

In these cases the company name associated with the company name in the database for the code will not be changed. That code and its name will remain as is.

To do business (account information, provisioning, billing, etc) with a provider, the company which made the purchase will contact the provider and negotiate for changes in account information for the code (the one where the name cannot be changed) to the purchasing company's own code. This negotiation will include, but not be limited to, the purchasing company showing the provider that the purchase was made, a list of the billable items that are now part of the purchasing company and the code that they are now a part of. The provider will then effect the changes in their systems.

The negotiation with the provider is NOT to change the name associated with the code that cannot be changed, but to change the code on the appropriate billable items to the purchasing company's code. Only Telcordia can make a name change for a code after review of the supporting legal state documentation.

The code that cannot be changed will not be used on any records that are identified as the purchasing company and it stays in the national database with its original meaning.

The reason for this is that legal state documentation supporting a name change has not been provided.

The difference in the requirements for the Telcordia national database and doing business with a provider goes back to the definition of the code. The code represents the legal company name and legal documentation from a state is required to substantiate it. The provider needs to know that a purchase of another company (total or partial) occurred and what billing items need to now be associated with the purchasing company.

Example:

Database before change:

ABC Alpha Beta Cellular.

With legal documentation of a name change, the database will show:

ABC New Company Name (Prev Alpha Beta Cellular).

Without legal documentation of a name change, the database will show:

ABC Alpha Beta Cellular (same as it was to start with).

It is not a problem to have an item in the database for a company that "no longer exists". If it truly no longer exists, that code will never be used. If part of the company still exists under that name, the code will validly be used by that company. The standard does not allow for database deletions, because if deleted, codes would be available for assignment and if some instances of the "old" code still exist in some database somewhere, incorrect billing could occur.

If a company purchases a company that does not have a code assigned to it, obviously there is nothing to change and the purchased company becomes part of the purchasing company using its IAC code.

If a code has been used invalidly, i.e., someone made it up, there is also nothing to change. The purchased company becomes part of the purchasing company using its code.

For an acquired company that does not have a code, a new code for that company will not be assigned for the purpose of changing it to the purchasing company. That would be a waste of a code and is not necessary. The purchased company becomes part of the purchasing company using its code.

Abbreviation/Acronym list:

ACNA	=	Access Customer Name Abbreviation
ANSI	=	American National Standards Institute
CCNA	=	Customer Carrier Name Abbreviation
EC	=	Exchange Carrier
IAC	=	(Interexchange Access Customer)
Prev	=	Previously

E. Mergers, acquisitions, buyouts, etc

When mergers, acquisitions or buyouts occur, the Telcordia COMMON LANGUAGE® Products Business Unit General Codes Chairperson should be informed so that the code(s) will reflect the way the "new" company is doing business. Telcordia works with each company to determine the best way for the change in structure to be represented, i.e., name change on existing code, referencing several existing codes to now use one overall code etc.

To effect a name change for a particular IAC code, Telcordia must be provided with legal documentation from a state government showing that the company name has changed from what is shown in the database to what the client desires to have shown. Documentation that does not specifically state a name change is not acceptable for a change to a company name in the national database.

F. Purchase of Assets

Generally, when one company purchases the assets of another company, a name change does not occur. The purchasing company is not acquiring the company, only its assets. In many cases, the original company name still exists and that company may remain in business. In addition, more than one company could buy portions of the assets of a particular company. These are more reasons to support the requirement of legal documentation to substantiate a company name change.

G. Use of codes

The EC codes represent a company name. (The EC code is used to populate the CC field.)

They do not represent

- general partnership,
- partial or total asset ownership or
- other financial involvement.

Separate codes are not assigned to a company for the purpose of internal tracking of different business items.

They also do not represent

- tax areas
- pricing plans
- tariffs
- functions within the company.

None of these examples are appropriate uses of the codes. In all of these cases there are other appropriate ways within the a company's processes to specify these kinds of scenarios, e.g., service order, LSR/ASR (Local Service Request/ Access Service Request), account information, billing, etc.

H. Z codes

Codes that begin with the letter Z are for local assignment and use and are invalid IAC codes except for 1 real one in the database (ZPC). A company may have internal reasons for wanting to track various items through their processes and these codes can be the vehicle. There may also be reason during a trial or test of a new system or service to use these codes. They could also be used locally for other functions. Each company assigns their own Z codes if they have a need. They keep track of the meaning of the codes within their company. THESE CODES ARE NOT TO BE USED TO INTERFACE WITH OTHER COMPANIES.

26 codes, ZTA through ZTZ, all with the meaning "Locally assigned for internal testing purposes-Invalid IAC code" are in the national database for local company use. Assigning these values helps to streamline a company's processes.

I. Invalid IAC codes (ZZZ, CUS, Codes not in D/B)

ZZZ and CUS are not IAC Codes or ACNAs, but defaults for a required field in ordering and other processes. For example, they would be used for a customer who orders using the ASR / LSR process but who would never be assigned an

IAC code. Therefore, ZZZ and CUS should never appear in the EC / IAC field in the CLONES System, Central Location On Line Entry Sytem.

NOTE: Both ZZZ and CUS are in the national database showing that they are invalid. They carry the same definition:

CUS: Default Value for Casual Customer. Not a Valid IAC Code

ZZZ: Default Value for Casual Customer. Not a Valid IAC Code

Codes not in the national database are also invalid.

IAC codes are listed in Table 8-1 , Table 9-1 and Table 10-1 of this Practice. Table 8-1 is in company name order; Table 9-1 is in IAC code order and Table 10-1 lists all codes that have been consolidated and shows their previous name(s).

6 Exchange Carrier Name Codes

A. The EC codes represent a company name. They identify Incumbent Local Exchange Carriers, Competitive Local Exchange Carriers, Interexchange Carriers, Resellers, Wireless Services Providers, Enhanced Service Providers, Telecommunications Billing and/or Processing Companies, Competitive Access Providers, Regional Holding Companies and any other type of company that is part of the telecommunications industry.

Separate codes are not assigned for different functions of a company. If a company falls into more than one of the above categories, the rule is as stated: The code represents a company name and one code per company name is assigned.

An Exchange Carrier (EC) is a telecommunications entity that provides dial tone and local exchange switching of telecommunications services and has at least one wire center. Resellers of local exchange service are considered to be Exchange Carriers for coding purposes even though they are not the network provider. The codes are required for these companies to do business with the companies from whom they buy (or lease) numbers, dial tone, facilities, etc.

Exchange Carrier Name codes are assigned to these companies by Telcordia as the maintenance agent for ANSI T1.251. The attempt is made to make the codes mnemonic when such a code is available and not already assigned.

The code is made up of four alphabetic characters. There are some two-character codes that are standard. These codes belonged to the former Bell System companies and at divestiture of the Bell System the judge allowed the companies to keep those codes to prevent having to change every record in every database. No other two-character codes were ever assigned and none ever will be.

One code per company is assigned. Separate codes are not assigned for different functions of a company. If it is necessary to define a function of a company, it is done in other ways, e.g., with the use of Field Identifiers on a Service Order.

(A given company may be assigned one Exchange Carrier Name code as well as one IAC code. The requirement for which code is needed is determined by the companies with whom the company does business i.e., some companies require a three-character code for their processes and some companies require a four-character code.)

When mergers, acquisitions or buyouts occur, the Telcordia COMMON LANGUAGE Products Business Unit General Codes Chairperson should be informed so that the code(s) will reflect the way the "new" company is doing business. Telcordia works with each company to determine the best way for the change in structure to be represented i.e., name change on existing code, referencing several existing codes to now use one overall code etc.

The codes are used by work groups with functions listed in the Scope section.

These codes are used by the following types of organizations: Network Distribution, Switching Operations, Financial/Comptrollers and Regulatory/ External Affairs. They are particularly applicable to the following operations: Ordering, Circuit Provisioning, Billing and Bill Verification.

Two important uses of these codes are interfacing between companies and achieving flow-through. These codes serve as a trigger to get an order moving through the process in most companies.

When a company places an order with a provider, the EC code (or CC) and the company name on the order are verified against the Telcordia national database. If there is a discrepancy, the provider will refer the company to Telcordia to follow procedures to update the database.

Codes not in the national database are invalid.

B. Assignment of new codes

One code per company is assigned. Separate codes are not assigned for different functions of a company. If a company functions as more than one of the kinds of entities listed above, ONE CODE IS ASSIGNED to the company name, not individual codes to the functions. If it is necessary to define a function of a company, it is done in other ways, e.g., with the use of Field Identifiers on a Service Order.

(A given company may be assigned one IAC code as well as one EC code. The requirement for which code is needed is determined by the companies with whom the company does business, i.e., some companies require a three-character code for their processes and some companies require a four-character code.)

C. Required documentation

Documentation required to substantiate the request for a code or change to a code is legal documentation from the state; generally the office of the Secretary of State.

Per ANSI Standard T1.251, the EC Code identifies a company. As the maintenance agent for the ANSI Standard, Telcordia upholds that definition. To that end, legal documentation is required showing a legal company name to be input into the database. This assures that the information going in is as correct as possible and that all users of the database can be confident about the information

Generally the legal document will be called Articles of Incorporation. However, not all companies are incorporated and not all states use the same name for the document. Here is a partial list of some document names that are acceptable as legal documentation:

- Amended Certificate of Convenience and Necessity
- Articles of Amendment
- Articles of Amendment to Articles of Incorporation

- Articles of Conversion
- Articles of Incorporation
- Articles of Merger
- Articles of Merger, Consolidation or Exchange
- Articles of Organization
- Articles of Organization Limited Liability Co

- Certificate of Incorporation
- Certificate of Merger
- Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity
- Certification of Fictitious Business Name
- Certified Fictitious Business Name Statement
- Registration of Fictitious Name
- Restated Articles of Incorporation with Amendments

Forms S-1 or 10K filed with Securities and Exchange Commission will very often be helpful in identifying subsidiaries.

D. Name Changes

To effect a name change for a particular EC code, Telcordia must be provided with legal documentation from a state government showing that the company name has changed from what is shown in the database to what the client desires to have shown. Documentation that does not specifically state a name change is not acceptable for a change to a company name in the national database.

Company name changes are requested when:

- a company changes its name

- a company purchases (or otherwise acquires) another company and the name of the "old" company changes to that of the purchasing company.

There may not be a direct, one-step link from the database name to what is desired because interim name changes may not have been provided to Telcordia. In this case, legal documentation that shows the links from the database name to what is desired is acceptable. For example:

Database Name = Company A / Desired Name = Company D

Documentation that depicts Company A to Company B to Company C to Company D is acceptable to change the name from Company A to Company D.

In some cases, for a variety of reasons, legal documentation of a name change is not available. Some of these reasons are:

- the company name did not actually change
- the "new" company bought assets, not the whole company
- the purchase occurred, but for business reasons, the name of the company will not be changed
- documentation cannot be found.

In these cases the company name associated with the company name in the database for the code will not be changed. That code and its name will remain as is.

To do business (account information, provisioning, billing, etc) with a provider, the company which made the purchase will contact the provider and negotiate for changes in account information for the code (the one where the name cannot be changed) to the purchasing company's own code. The code that cannot be changed will not be used on any records that are identified as the purchasing company and it stays in the national database with its original meaning.

The reason for this is that legal state documentation supporting a name change has not been provided.

The difference in the requirements for the Telcordia national database and doing business with a provider goes back to the definition of the code. The code represents the legal company name and legal documentation from a state is required to substantiate it. The provider needs to know that a purchase of another company (total or partial) occurred and what billing items need to now be associated with the purchasing company.

Example:

Database before change:

With legal documentation of a name change, the database will show:

ABCD New Company Name (Prev Alpha Beta Communications Co.).

Without legal documentation of a name change, the database will show:

ABCD Alpha Beta Communications Co. (same as it was to start with).

It is not a problem to have an item in the database for a company that "no longer exists". If it truly no longer exists, that code will never be used. Table 11-1 is in company name order; Table 12-1 is in Exchange Carrier Name code order and Table 13-1 lists all codes that have been consolidated and shows their previous name(s).

The numeric column on Table 11-1 and Table 12-1 contains the NECA (National Exchange Carrier Association) Company Code assigned to these companies by NECA as maintenance agent for ANSI T1.251. These codes are provided in this document as an aid to the user. NECA is the source of expertise on the numeric codes.

7 Company Codes - Telcordia and Regional Holding Companies

The company codes for Telcordia and the seven Regional Holding Companies were assigned at divestiture of the Bell System. The codes were kept separate from the Exchange Carrier Name codes because these companies are holding companies of Exchange Carriers. A Regional Holding Company is one of seven business entities that were formed as a result of the breakup of the Bell System.

These codes were assigned in 1984 and have not changed. No other codes will be added to this section.

The code is made up of two alphabetic characters.

Company Codes for Telcordia and the Regional Holding Companies are listed in Table 14-1 of this Practice.
