

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ## INTRODUCTION.

EVERY ONE hears and reads of news by the Telegraph from day to day, without considering, much less understanding the principles of this mode of communicating intelligence. On account of its incalculable importance to the mercantile, commercial, and trading interests, as well as the lives of our fellow citizens, I have thought it would be interesting to most persons, to have some general knowledge of the construction of the Semaphoric Telegraph, at the New Exchange, in our city, its manner of operating, together with the objects embraced in conducting the establishment. "It must, (says a learned lecturer), be evident to the most common observer, that no means of conveying intelligence, can ever be devised, that shall exceed, or even equal the rapidity of the Semaphoric Telegraph; for, with the exception of the scarcely perceptible delay at each station, which is necessary in repeating a communication, its rapidity may be compared to light itself."

It would be almost superfluous to dwell upon the incalculable benefit that would arise to our country, to the public revenue, to private convenience, and to public safety and security, by establishing a ramified telegraph system, extending from the metropolis to the principal sea port towns and cities, and to the right and left of such lines of communication. Such an undertaking would be a sublime attempt at an approximation of time and space, and would be actually worthy of the high and enterprising character of our nation. The telegraph science is yet in its infancy in our country; very few have turned their attention to it. In theory, it appears to have made great progress, but in practice little has been done; the practical facility of the art, is apparent to those who have studied it, but like other things it cannot be acquired intuitively.

Among the numerous plans of telegraphs which have been devised, we find none exceeds in simplicity, or excels in greater rapidity than the Semaphoric system. The process of making communication by telegraph for many years, was by spelling the words, each sign denoting a letter of the alphabet; but modern ingenuity has introduced dictionaries, or vocabularies, by which words, phrases and sentences can be communicated at once, by being arranged alphabetically, and having opposite to each word, or sentence, a corresponding numeral affixed thereto. Our manner of operating is derived from the French, and includes three distinct principles. The first is the projection of an arm from a post,

The Semaphoric Telegraph at the new Exchange, State street, and the Observatory on Central Wharf communicates with an outer station at Nantasket in the following manner: The upper arm revolves in six positions denoting the number of ships in sight in the offing. The second arm revolves in six positions denoting the number of barques in the offing.

The lower arm revolves in six positions, denoting the number brigs in the offing. Vessels designating telegraph numbers are announced by the stations, and reported to the Insurance Offices and the Exchange Reading-room, State street, and information of their arrival in the bay communicated to those Subscribers who patronize the telegraph establishment.

either from the top or the side. The second is the construction, or mechanical contrivance, by means of which the numerals are formed. The third comprehends the limits of power furnished by the single or combined action of the wings and arms. The Semaphoric Telegraph consists of an upright post, or mast, sixty feet in height, having three moveable arms, composed of board or copper, six to ten feet in height, and one foot in breadth, hung at equal distances from the top at one end by a pivot, in such manner, that when the arms are at rest, they hang perpendicularly against the mast. These arms are moved into six positions each, by chains and wheels, three on each side the mast, and denote the numerals one to three, commencing with number one to three, on the left, counting from the bottom, and four to six, on the right downwards from the top, so that the three arms display eighteen positions, which, upon the principle of permutation, will express many thousands.

A highly important auxiliary is attached to the Semaphoric Telegraph system, by means of flags, denominated The Marine Telegraph, (so called). They operate upon the same principle with the Semaphoric Land Telegraph. They are six in number, and correspond with its arms. The six flags denote the numerals from one to six. They are all blue and white, and of the same size with duplicate numbers. To the full set of twelve flags, is added a Conversation flag. By such means, vessels at sea can communicate to each other, and to the shore, on approaching it. The application of the art by the adoption of the Semaphoric system, will naturally follow the rapid improvements which are characteristic of the present age, an opinion may be expressed of how much importance a line of telegraphic communication upon our rail roads, would tend to prevent the frequent collisions that take place, thereby saving a very great expense to the corporations, and preventing the loss of life to many individuals. I have been induced to furnish this account of the Semaphoric system by land and by sea, in order that the public may thus be enabled to form a comparative judgment of what might otherwise remain unknown, as the science from such an impulse, has a better chance of advancing, than if it remained stationary.

To the Mercantile, Commercial and Trading Interest of Boston.

The semiannual period of the twenty-first year of this Establishment having nearly arrived, the undersigned begs leave to offer a few remarks for consideration, wherein are involved matters that concern his future interests, being for the purpose of making known the causes that oblige him to pursue a course which necessity alone compels him to adopt.

This establishment was commenced in 1824, as will appear from a copy of its receipts and expenditures hereunto annexed. The result of twenty years has enabled the Conductor (thus far) to continue his services for the public as well as private accommodation. With the expectation that the new location in State street would be more acceptable, arrangements were made for that purpose (at an increased expenditure) while at the same time the location at the Observatory on Central Wharf has been continued. As the result of the last six months' income does not compare with former years, and as an increased expenditure as well as more arduous duties are imposed. The undersigned, (at his advanced period in life,) regrets being under the necessity to offer his establishment with its appurtenances, for sale, deliverable on the first of July, 1843.

JOHN R. PARKER.
